

- Once upon a time , I met someone who made my ordinary days into magic.
- This is not a speech, it's a confession.. A declaration of the love that runs through my veins.
- Today I want to speak about what love truly means to me.
- Love it's a small word, just 4 letters but it holds millions of feelings , to heal hearts, to change the world and to make life 10 times more beautiful.
- It's the feelings that turns ordinary moments into memories that make silence feel like music when you are with the right person.
- Love is not about flowers chatting or candlelight dinners, it's understanding the way your heart gets faster when they smile the support during their harder times.
- True love is courage to vulnerable, the strength to forgive and joy of growing old together.

- When I think of love I mean when someone can calm every storm inside you.
- When in their eyes you see hope and in their voice you hear peace in their heart you found home.
- In the end I'll tell you love is what makes life worth living.

